

In this highly competitive, constantly evolving industry, a legal team that understands your business is a powerful asset. At Roythornes, we have been serving the food community for over 60 years, advising fresh and chilled food businesses and helping them achieve profitable relationships with their supermarket clients.

Our field-to-fork understanding has given us an exceptional reputation across the industry. We understand the pressures our clients face, so we go beyond pure legal advice, sharing our expertise and drawing on our contacts to help you go from strength to strength.

From crisis management and contract disputes to negotiating corporate transactions, our Food and Drink team focuses on the key issues to help clients achieve their objectives.

Our team brings together corporate, litigation, tax and property lawyers with extensive experience, meaning that clients always receive advice from someone who knows the sector and the key issues.

“We are well known for our work in the Food and Drink sectors and have for many years assisted businesses involved in this important part of the economy.

Our Food Regulatory team focus on working with businesses on the challenge of compliance with often complex legislation. More specifically they help when these businesses are faced with the threat of enforcement action and prosecution from regulatory authorities such as the Food Standards Agency, DEFRA or Trading Standards.”

Some of the areas where they help food businesses include:

- Informal advice and warnings
- Formal enforcement letters
- Remedial Action Notices
- Hygiene Improvement Notices

- Detention Notices
- CCTV notices
- Welfare Enforcement Notices
- Appealing decisions by the Food Standard Agency to suspend or revoke Certificates of Competence
- Interview Under Caution
- Criminal Prosecutions
- Appealing approval decisions by the Food Standards Agency
- Challenging unlawful action by the Food Standards Agency or DEFRA

Speed of action is of particular importance when dealing with these matters, so if you are ever faced with an issue please contact our team immediately. As detailed on the attached flyer, they will be happy to have a 30-minute conversation about your issue and recommend further action.
